- Sketch Of The Mesnard Family -

The following by Howard W. Mesnard of Pittsburg, Pa., written in 1876.

"In the early part of the seventeenth century, Andrew Bumpean came from Rochelle, France, to the American Colonies, and settled in a place called New Rochelle, located in the southern part of what is now called Westchester County, in the State of New York. A man named Mesnard married Andrew Bumpean's daughter, by whom he had several children, and among them a son whom they named John, and we shall distinguish this son by the name of John Mesnard Sr. He married a daughter of Timothy Knapp, known at that time as Judge Knapp, a native of Staffordshire England. The date of this marriage is supposed to have been about 1770.

John Mesnard Sr. reared a family of several children, among whom were four sons, Andrew, John Jr., Orrison and William. We shall here confine ourselves to the history of the eldest son, Andrew, the father of Eri Mesnard. Thus far we have traced the history of the Mesnard family down to Eri Mesnard, as given to us verbally by the said John Mesnard Sr.

We find that Andrew Mesnard was born in Fairfield County, Conn. in 1775, and was married Jan. 1, 1797 to Mary Hoyt, dau. of Timothy Hoyt, of New Canaan, Fairfield County, Conn., and that he resided there until 1806, when his wife died and he then moved to Saratoga County, N. Y. There he married for his second wife, Rebecca Hoyt, dau. of David Hoyt, brother of Timothy Hoyt. He resided in Saratoga County until 1818, when he moved to Onondaga County, N. Y., where he remained until 1831, then moved to Michigan, where he died in 1856.
Eri Mesnard went with his father to Onondaga County, N.Y., and there he married Lucy Hill in 1826. In 1830 his wife died leaving two children, a son, and a daughter. In 1835 he married for his second wife, Harriet Baker, dau. of Seth Baker of Lafayette, Onondaga County, N.Y., and in 1836 moved to Fairfield, Huron County, Ohio, where he resided until 1843, when he moved to Norwalk, Huron County, Ohio, where he now (1876) resides. He has four children, one son and three daughters, all by his second wife. Perhaps we might here mention that he practised surveying and engineering, and was County Surveyor for nearly fourteen years."

"Some years previous to the Revolutionary War Timothy Knapp was, by the authority of the British Crown, appointed a Judge to sit and preside in the then Colony of Connecticut, and was commissioned for the term of seven years. Accordingly he set sail for America, not expecting to make it his final home, but intending at the expiration of his term to return to England. Before the expiration of his term, his wife died and after a few months he returned to England. There he married a second wife and again returned to America. At the expiration of his first term, he received an appointment for a second term and concluded to remain in America for another seven years. Before the second term expired the Revolutionary War began, and as might be expected, he held to the mother country. During his Judgeship he had acquired a large farm and considerable wealth, but being looked upon as a Tory, all his property was taken from him and his farm confiscated. He finally was taken prisoner and taken to a place called " Simsbury Mine" and there imprisoned. When the War ended he returned to his farm, but found that he had nothing there he could call his own, and after a few years he died in poverty and chagrin. "

The following compiled by James S. Mesnard, son of Solomon & Mary (Spitler) Mesnard, of Altamont, Ills., in 1909. (For a record of decendents of Solomon & Mary (Spitler) Mesnard, see page 426)

"John Mesnard Jr., was the second son of John Sr., and his wife, the daughter of Judge Timothy Knapp. He was born Mar. 2, 1789 in the State of New York, and moved with his parents to Connecticut, where he was married Jan. 6, 1811 to Phoebe Slocum. They reared a family of six sons, namely, Alfred, John H., Solomon, Addison, Nelson & Norman, and two daughters, Mary & Electa. Some of the above children were born in New York and some in Connecticut. After residing in Conn. for several years, he moved with his family to Fairfield County, Ohio, in 1832. He lived in Ohio until 1841 or 1842, then moved to Effingham County, Ills., where he died Aug. 14, 1868 at the home of his son, Solomon. His wife Phoebe died May 13, 1860. None of John Mesnard'S children are now (1909) living. Alfred and John died in Ohio. Solomon, Addison, Nelson & Norman all died in Illinois. The oldest daughter, Mary, married Spellman Kelly and moved to Kansas where she died. Electa married Samuel Kelly, brother of Spellman Kelly. They lived in Shelbyville, Ills., nearly all their married lives and died there about 1900."

The following compiled by Anna Leith, dau. of Solomon Mesnard. June 1922. Effingham County, Ills.
"John Mesnard Jr., came from Fairfield County, Ohio, to Effingham County, Ills., in 1841 with a colony comprised of the following families, among others: W. W. Young, David McCabe, A. B. Kagey, Dr. John Lecrone, the four Leith brothers, Isaac, David, James and Wilkenson.(The last named helped to survey Effingham County into Townships) . Mrs. Ruffner, mother of Harrison Ruffner, and her children. Her husband had died in Fairfield County, Ohio, after making all preparations to join the colony. Harrison Ruffner is perhaps the oldest one, if not the only one living at the present time,(June 1922), who was a member of that colony. He is living at the present time in Denver, Colo., with his daughter, Mrs. Alma Riggs.

THE STORY OF AN OLD BOOK

On September 13, 1736, the ship Princess Augusta, Samuel Merchant, Master, landed at the port of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, after a long and perilous voyage across the Atlantic. She had come from Rotterdam, Holland, her last port of call, Cowes, Isle of Wight, England. Aboard this sailing craft were 330 German, Swiss and Palatine emigrants, bound for the New World. Most of them, to reach the sea, had traveled by boat the length of the River Rhine, that romantic waterway so kind to these wanderers. At every village and hamlet along the way they were hailed by the inhabitants with such poignant greetings as "Lebe wohl" and "Geh mit Gott."

Among this courageous band were two adventuring Switzers, father and son, Johannes Spitler, Sr., born 1689, and Johannes, Jr., born 1718, accompanied by other members of their family. On leaving their native village of Penwyl, Canton Bern, Switzerbland, to seek a better life in the new and fabulous America, they bade farewell forever to an older Hans Spitler, father and grandfather, respectively, to these two travelers.

Eventually, after arriving in this country, they settled in that lovely and fertile region, the Lebanon Valley, near Swatara Creek, a tributary of the Susquehanna. Here they engaged in farming. Here it was, also, that Johannes, Jr., met and married a Lebanon County girl, Elizabeth Heule, (locally called Miley) daughter of Jacob Heule or Miley, an outstanding citizen in the community. To this union were born three children, Elizabeth, Jacob and John. Elizabeth Spitler married a Shuey, ancestor of Rev. W. J. Shuey, for many years agent of the United Brethren Publishing House at Dayton, Ohio. Jacob Spitler married the widow Lane, (nee Susannah Buchwalter), of of the same family line as the Rev. Lewis Bookwalter, at one time pastor of the First United Brethren Church at Dayton, Ohio. (It is a tradition in the Spitler family that one of the children of Susannah Buchwalter Lane and her first husband was a lineal ancestor of General Lane of Kansas). Of the marriage and descendants of the third child, John Spitler, nothing is definitely known.* (See note at end) It is believed, however, that he settled in York County, Pennsylvania, where he brought up a family.

In May of 1757, during the French and Indian War, Johannes, Jr., (whose children were still quite young) on returning from the field to his home, was shot and killed, (while attempting to replace the bars of a gate,) by Indian scouts in the employ of the French. This brutal massacre, his body horribly mangled, made him an historical figure, the tragic episode, along with similar Indian assassinations of the Whites, being recorded in several histories of those early events. This moving story, in greater detail, came down by word of mouth through four generations of the descendants of Johannes, Jr., and was finally verified by a fifth-generation member of the family through the German records of the old Hebron Moravian Church near Lebanon, now a part of the city. Also, there is an account of the massacre in a book, "Graves That Tell a Tale", by the Moravian minister the Rev. S. C. Albright. This story of the untimely end of the thirty-eight-year old Johannes, Jr., likewise appears in Volume XV of the proceedings of the Pennsylvania German Society, and, briefly, in Prof. I. Daniel Rupp's "Collection of Thirty Thousand Names".

The elderly father of the murdered Johannes, worn with grief and shock over the death of his son, and by the rigors of his pioneer existence, survived this tragedy by only a few months. Their gravestones may still be seen in the men's choir of the now-restored Moravian Cemetery at Lebanon. These stones lie flat instead of upright, according to the Moravian custom. Thus ended the odyssey of the two brave men who had hoped for so much from the New World.

The suddenly bereaved widow of Johannes, Jr., bravely, but with great fear in her heart, did the only thing left for her to do. She gathered her three children together, the youngest one an infant in arms, put a box of family trinkets in her apron and started for her father's house, a mile distant across the fields. This dwelling, the Jacob Miley residence, served also as a sort of fort, being a place of refuge for the white settlers in the immediate locality, in case of attack by the Indians. The young widow's dangerous passage was made successfully, but think what might so easily have happened to her and the little ones, had the savages decided to molest them! There would then not have been the many descendants in America of these three young survivors. And what would the writer not give to know the contents of that family treasure-box, especially to possess just one keepsake from the box, handed down through the generations!

These two courageous immigrant ancestors have given their numerous progeny in America a number of reasons for gratitude and for pride in their origin. One of these is that, unlike many of their contemporaries, who could only make their mark as their signature, Johannes, Sr., and Jr., were literate men. This is evident from their act of signing their own names to the register on taking the Oath of Allegiance at Philadelphia, signatures that are still preserved, among many others, in the Pennsylvania archives. They are also preserved, both in facsimile and in type, in that excellent three-volume work, "The German Pioneers", by Ralph Beaver Strassburger and the late Prof. William John Hinke.

After Jacob Spitler married the widow Lane (just how long after is not known) he decided, as many of his contemporaries were then doing, to go adventuring like his forebears, and join the trek from Pennsylvania down into the rich Shenandoah Valley in Virginia. He stopped first at Berkley Springs, Virginia, now a part of West Virginia, where he tarried for a year or two and where his son John was born. Then, the urge to move on overpowering him again, Jacob journeyed to Rockingham County where he stayed for a time. Finally, once more troubled with itching feet, he went still further south to Botetourt County, Virginia. Here he bought a farm near Fincastle, where he remained for the rest of his life, dying in 1825. His remains lie in the family burial plot on his farm. The dwelling that he built for his family deserves some mention. It was a two-story log house, with Dutch doors divided in the middle, and a breezeway connecting the two sections of the house. With its wide fireplaces, heavily beamed ceilings, deep window sills and wrought iron door-latches and hinges, it was an interesting specimen of the early pioneer home. Until not so many years ago this old landmark, (which the writer had the pleasure of visiting in her youth) was still standing.

During the later period of his life Jacob made one trip to Dayton to visit his son John. When John returned to Virginia some years later, to see his elderly parents once more, his mother, overjoyed at the sight of him, threw her arms about him, exclaiming, "It was love, John, that constrained you to come back."

Jacob's daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Burntraeger, sometimes spelled Borntraeger or Bontraeger, her husband, David, and her young brother, John, likewise overtaken by the wanderlust, left Virginia together in 1805 to seek their fortunes in the famed Ohio country. The Burntraegers settled in Warren County, Ohio, near Lebanon, where two of their children intermarried with the Corwin family. This name recalls that interesting historical character, Thomas Corwin, "the wagon boy", later governor of Ohio. His home is still standing in Lebanon.

After a brief sojourn in Warren County, John Spitler came farther north, finally settling permanently in Clay Township, Montgomery County, Ohio, where he bought a farm south of Phillipsburg and built a house. There he met and married Barbara Rohrer, a pretty black-eyed maiden, whose father, Joseph Rohrer, John had known as a boy in Virginia. Barbara was the first white child born west of the Miami River. Her father, Joseph, that intrepid pioneer, was the first white man to explore the Wolf Creek valley. His wife, nee Mary Rasor, of Annville, Pennsylvania, likewise deserves credit not only as a brave pioneer woman, but also for the staunch defense she gave her brother back in Pennsylvania, hiding him from the Red Coats during the Revolution.

In 1803 Joseph Rohrer went from the mouth to the source of Wolf Creek, encountering at the headwaters a beautiful and bounteous spring of crystal clear water, where he later built himself a most interesting home. The spring is still flowing as generously as ever. Joseph's daughter Barbara and her husband, John Spitler, had a large family. To each of the children, as they married, John presented a farm as a wedding present, a definite testimonial to his own thrift and wise management. John Spitler was of a benign temperament and lived to the ripe old age of ninety. Rather strangely for one his age, this worthy pioneer was fatally stricken with diphtheria and died on March 24, 1874.

Now, at last, we come to The Book. Mrs. Hannah Beschler, John Spitler's daughter, was in possession, at the time of her death, of a prized family relic, inherited from her father.

This was a German edition of John Foxe's "Book of Martyrs". As so often happened to a childless person, her effects were sold by auction after her death. At the sale this precious book was bought by a Spitler descendant, Clinton Baker, and was shortly thereafter sold to the writer of this sketch. It is needless to say that she has cherished it in the intervening years and now she takes great pleasure and satisfaction in the fact that "in journeyings often" and "in perils in the wilderness", the quaint old family heirloom has at last found a safe and permanent home in the beautiful new library of the Bonebrake Theological Seminary, at Dayton, Ohio, now called United Theological Seminary.

This German edition of "The Book of Martyrs" was printed in 1748 at the Ephrata Cloisters, Ephrata, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, by the Ephrata Brotherhood, a semi-monastic community of Seventh Day Dunkers, which contained both men and women. Many of the members were scholars. One of these, Peter Miller, second prior of the monastery, was requested by Congress to translate the Declaration of Independence into seven languages, which he did. Their printing press turned out a number of works in both English and German, among the best known being the Martyr Book. All were fine examples of the printer's art.

The history of this copy of the Martyr Book is a blank between the date of its printing and the time it was brought to Ohio from Virginia in 1805 by the young pioneer, John Spitler. But it very likely belonged to John's father, Jacob, who may have bought it in Pennsylvania and brought it with him to Virginia. This is a probability sustained by the fact that Jacob was born and brought up not far from Ephrata, where this copy first saw the light of day. One likes to give the imagination full range in such a case, fancying, that, in view of the date of printing, even John who was killed "by den Wilden" as one German account has it, might have been the original owner of the book, or perhaps even his father, since both father and son lived till 1757, and spoke German as their native tongue. If early finger-prints could only tell a tale, we might perhaps know from the finger marks on this old volume that all those first Moravian Spitlers had handled, read, and treasured this book! Its format, the interesting typography, including the lovely Gothic initial capitals, its heavy wooden covers, with their brass corners and hasps, all are such as would delight the soul of a present-day antiquarian, but which seem to have been taken as a matter of course in the more pains-taking art of that earlier period.

"The Book of Martyrs" was the popular name of this widely known and read book of the earlier days. It seemed to rank second only to the Bible as religious reading matter in the pioneer homes of the first settlers. Originally written in English by the English writer, John Foxe (born 1516-died 1587) the formal title of this work was "History of the Acts and Monuments of the Church". The first English edition was published in 1563. It is not a critical work and the Roman hierarchy denies its trustworthiness. However, it was very popular and has often been re-printed, in this country as late as 1926. May it live on to inspire and instruct future generations as it did so many of our forefathers!

—— Maude Spitler
Dayton, Ohio
February, 1954

The John Spitler who brought the Martyr Book to Ohio in 1805 was the great-grandfather of the writer of this sketch, who happens to be the "fifth-generation member of the Spitler family" fortunate enough to have verified the story herein related.

The Joseph Rohrer pioneer homestead in Clay Township was another very interesting example of an early home in this section. It was a large, two-story, log house weatherboarded before the writer's recollection. Its outstanding feature was to the writer a deeply-indented front porch, upstairs and down. At the north end a winding, enclosed stairway within the porch led up to the upper story. The house contained many rooms with the usual fireplaces and deep window sills. The big spring flowed through the northeast corner of the cellar where the dairy products were kept. This dwelling was still standing and in good condition until some 25 years ago, when it was suddenly destroyed by fire. (November, 1910).

(*) The writer learned lately that the John Spitler who settled in York County (he was one of the sons of the murdered Johannes) raised a large family of five sons and two daughters. All of the sons settled in Virginia, later, two of them moving west to Kansas.

THE SPITLER FAMILY

I

Johannes Spitler, Sr.
b. Dec. 7th, 1690, at Pennyl, Canton Bern, Switzerland.

d. Oct. 29th, 1757, at his farm near Lebanon, Penna, Gravestone No. 33, in the Hebron Moravian cemetery.

Johannes, Sr., was the first Spitler of our direct line to emigrate to America, along with members of his family. He left his home in Canton Bern, Switzerland, in the spring of 1736, for this long journey, first down the River Rhine, then to Rotterdam and finally to Cowes, Isle of Wight, England, whence he sailed to America in the ship Princess Augusta, Samuel Merchant, Master. He landed at the port of Philadelphia, September 16, 1736, where he took the Oath of Allegiance before proceeding further. This all immigrants were obliged to do.

II

Johannes Spitler, Jr.

b. September 24th, 1718, at Pennyl, Canton Bern, Switzerland.

d. May 16th, 1757, at his farm near Lebanon, Penna. Gravestone No. 28 in the Hebron cemetery, Lebanon.

Johannes Spitler, Jr., son of the above, came to America with his father in 1736, being a few days less than 18 years of age when he landed at Philadelphia. Both father and son settled on land in Swatara Township, Lebanon County, Pennsylvania. The son married Elizabeth Meule (usually pronounced and spelled Miley) daughter of Jacob Miley, an outstanding citizen in their community. Johannes, Jr., was massacred in the French and Indian War by Indian scouts in the employ of the French, on May 16th, 1757, leaving his wife and three young children. His remains lie near his father's grave in the Hebron Moravian cemetery at Lebanon, which was completely restored a few years ago. The children of Johannes, Jr., and Elizabeth Miley Spitler were three in number, John, Jacob and Elizabeth. She married a Shuey; John settled in York County, where he brought up a family of five sons and two daughters. The sons' names were William, Jacob, John Wesley, George and Millard. The names of the daughters are unknown. All five sons settled in Virginia, two of them later going to Kansas to live. The widow of the murdered Johannes later married a man named Adam Faber, by whom she is said to have had children. Johannes Jr.'s son Jacob, my lineal ancestor, was married in Penna to the widow Lane, nee Susannah Buchwalter.

III

Jacob Spitler

b. Date unknown, but during or before 1757.

d. Date unknown, but after October 13th 1825, the day he made his will, and before the convening of the Botetourt August Court, 1826, when the will was order to be recorded.

Jacob Spitler married the widow Lane, nee Susannah Buchwalter, who had four children by Mr. Lane. One of the Lane daughters married a Mr. Root. The Lanes were related to General Lane of Kansas. (See Funk & Wagnalls, New Standard Encyclopedia under James Henry Lane, 1814 - 1866). Jacob and Susannah left Penna, settling first at Berkeley Springs, Virginia (now West Virginia) where several of their children, including my great grandfather, John, were born. The rest were born either in Rockingham County, where Jacob and Susannah lived for a while after leaving Berkeley Springs, or in Botetourt County, Virginia, on a farm five miles east of Fincastle, owned by Jacob, where he lived for the rest of his life.

IV

Children of Jacob and Susannah, all born in Virginia:

1. Joseph Spitler

b. Oct. 25, 1780

d. Date unknown, but he lived to old age. He came to Ohio and lived on a farm on the National Road (now route 40) not far east of Arlington, later called th Billy Wenger farm. He married a Miss Linkenauger, said to be a shrew.

2. Jacob Spitler

b. Feb. 2, 1782

d. Feb. 11 1857

Married Susannah Wise. They are buried (or at least he is) in the ~~Christine~~ Christine cemetery at Taylorsburg, near Dayton.

3. Elizabeth Spitler Borntraeger

b. April 6, 1783

d. Date unknown, in Warren County, Ohio, where she and her husband settled in 1805. She married David Borntraeger in Virginia. They had a son Andrew, also other children, two of whom married into the Corwin family of Warren County.

4. John Spitler, my great grandfather

b. Feb. 9, 1785 in Berkeley County, Virginia

d. Mar. 24, 1874 of diphtheria at his farm in Clay Township. John married Barbara Rohrer, who was born Feb. 1, 1788 and died April 20, 1870. She was the daughter of that hardy pioneer, Joseph Rohrer and his wife, Mary Rasor Rohrer. Joseph died at the age of 55 years.

5. Magdalena Spitler Heck

b. Nov. 20, 1787, in Virginia

d. Jan. 4, 1853, near Dayton on the Eaton Pike.

She married David Heck, Sr., in Virginia. Their son, John Heck, was the father of Ollie Heck at Liberty, and of Mrs. Clara Heck Shank, mother of Dr. Everett Shank, a Dayton doctor. Besides John, Magdalena and David had the following children:

John (above), David, Jr., Sam, Aaron, Mrs. Susannah Wallace, Mrs. Anna Shank, Polly and Elizabeth, who were both unmarried. Earl L. Heck, postmaster at Englewood, Ohio, Mrs. Clara Heck Shields, Route 2, Greenville, Ohio, and Mrs. Mary Focht, Brethern Home, Greenville, are all Heck third cousins of mine.

6. Samuel Spitler, dates unknown, lived and died in Virginia.

7. Anna Spitler, married John Whistler. Dates unknown. Lived and died in Virginia.

The foregoing five children of Jacob and Susannah, all came out to Ohio to remain, leaving Samuel and Anna back in Virginia. Elizabeth and husband settled in Warren County, Ohio, near Lebanon. The rest all settled in Montgomery County, Ohio. It is according to Jacob's will that we know of the two children, Anna and Samuel, who remained in Virginia. Jacob wills "to my son, Samuel, 130 pounds, and 4 shillings". "To my daughter, Anna Whistler, 118 pounds, 18 shillings". I do not recall my father, Ir.
